

Ros Hancell:

Ros has been a teacher and headteacher in a range of schools in the UK, driving school improvement and improvements to learning outcomes and attendance, recognized by the DFE.

She leveraged this experience working as Director of Education for Reach to Teach a UK based education charity, designing and delivering teaching and leadership programmes across three hundred schools supporting vulnerable communities in remote rural regions in Gujarat. These programmes were adopted by regional and district education ministries.

In the last three years she has worked as Lead Advisor at Education Development Trust. Her work in school and system improvement, at scale, has included partnerships with schools and policy makers in the UK, Asia, Ethiopia, Rwanda, Zimbabwe and Sierra Leone and Qatar. As part of this role she designed, contributed to and published research on improving the quality of teaching, learning and education leadership at scale
